SUMMER HEALTH ADVICE FOR SENIORS

The hot, hazy days of summer can pose special health risks to older adults. It’s important that older people avoid heat-related illnesses known as hyperthermia. Hyperthermia is an abnormally high body temperature caused by a failure of the heat regulation mechanisms of the body to deal with heat coming from the environment. Heat fatigue, heat related dizziness, heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke are commonly known forms of hyperthermia. Health-related factors that may increase risk include:

- Being dehydrated
- Age-related changes to the skin, such as poor blood circulation and inefficient sweat glands.
- Heart, lung and kidney diseases, as well as any illness that causes general weakness or fever.
- High blood pressure or other conditions that require changes in diet.
- Reduced perspiration.
- Being substantially overweight or underweight.
- Drinking alcoholic beverages.

Older people, particularly those with chronic medical conditions, should stay indoors on hot and humid days, especially when an air pollution is in effect. People without air conditions should go to place such as the SENIOR CENTER or other places where it is air conditioned.
